Managing Data Errors in your Database

Data is the most important asset to your company and it requires regular maintenance. If your data is not validated regularly, it could be detrimental to the business with producing misleading results in reports and could negatively impact the financial outcome of your business.

Below are some ways that data can become corrupt within your system

- ❖ The misuse of "Correction Mode" by users
- ❖ Process Scheduler Job errors
- ❖ Incoming bad data from External Interfaces
- ❖ Inter-departmental bad data transfers
- ❖ One-off SQL update fixes and deleting system data

The above actions bypasses PeopleCode and processing logic that is in place to validate system data across application modules. Other problems to occur are negative system performance when navigating between pages. The results are bad data within your system and if not timely managed, can create havoc throughout your business.

Data Validation Tool

After a Statement of Work agreement has been agreed upon, the entire engagement should take no more than 2 weeks to implement.

The following actions will take place during the engagement

- ❖ Client creates a new instance from a current copy of the Production database
- ❖ Client provide full security access to the new instance
- ❖ PeopleTools Data Validation Tool and Reports are uploaded to new instance
- ❖ Kick-off the program and reports
- ❖ Provide report to client for further action to clean data
